‘Protecting Mobility through Improving Labour Rights Enforcement in Europe’ (PROMO) is a European Commission funded project that aims to enhance administrative cooperation and information sharing between relevant stakeholders engaged with posting of workers. The planned actions aim to 1) bring together researchers and practitioners to make policy-relevant the academic research on worker posting; 2) improve cooperation between worker protection systems; 3) improve union rights and HRM systems for posted workers; and 4) improve quantitative information collection on posted work. Actions involve series of workshops and conferences that bring together researchers, representatives of labour inspectorates, social partners and other relevant actors, and writing a series of policy oriented publications.
